

Providing Affordable, Effective Communications Solutions

Business Text Messaging (SMS)

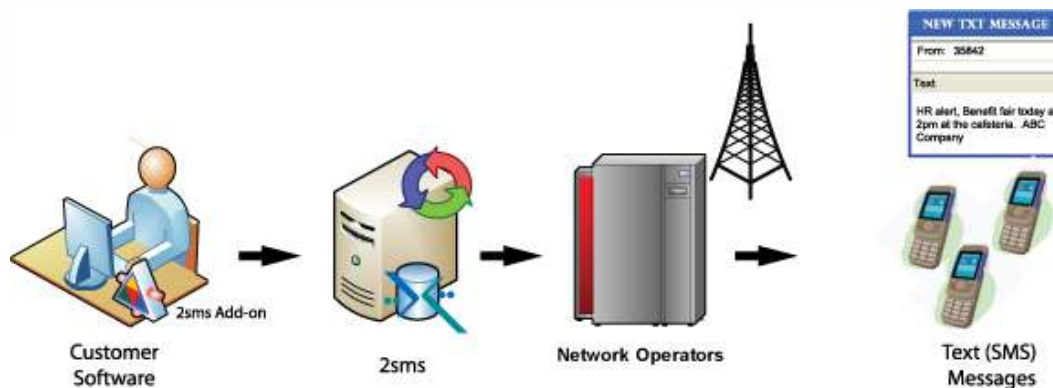

What is your current process for communicating with your employees, customers and suppliers? Is email fast enough when many people are not at their desk?

Text messaging can deliver information from your computer to groups of people faster than calling, emailing, or sending by mail. Getting your people to react faster to changed circumstances, keeping customers informed, and getting changed orders to suppliers faster will all improve your productivity.

Text messaging is now used by airlines, train companies, construction companies, retail and the public sector to alert their staff to new information, emergencies, business problems, customer requests, service items and critical information.
